In this course we will investigate how law has both reflected and helped define racial identity and membership in the United States.

Course Description and Requirements

Overview:
Legal Studies R1B is a four-unit course that satisfies the second half of Berkeley’s Reading and Composition requirement. I strongly advise that you take this course only if you have already fulfilled the first half of the Reading and Composition Requirement.

Course Goals:
The purpose of this class is to provide students with the skills to be critical readers and thoughtful writers who can express themselves clearly and persuasively. By the end of this course, students should be able to: identify an author’s point of view and main arguments; evaluate an author’s credibility and the merits of his or her argument; identify areas for further inquiry (i.e., questions the text raises but does not answer); write a unified essay with introduction, thesis statement, transitions between paragraphs, and a concluding paragraph; and research, analyze, and develop an argument about an issue related to the course. In addition, students should be familiar with fundamental concepts of equal protection law and should be able to draw conclusions about their role in the formation of group and individual racial identity.

Attendance
Due to the collaborative nature and intense pace of this class, your consistent attendance and participation are essential.

You are allowed 3 absences over the course of the semester, no questions asked. Any absence after the 3rd will reduce your final grade by 1/3 (B+ → B). This applies to any absence for any reason (illness, family emergency, too tired to come to class, etc). Everyone has unexpected things come up, so save your absences for when you really need them.

Active Participation
This class builds off everyone’s participation in discussions. Bodily presence alone does not constitute active participation. Sleeping in class, arriving late or leaving early and not having done the day’s readings will lower your participation grade. More importantly, it makes it hard to build a productive classroom community.

If you have concerns about speaking in class, please discuss them with me as soon as possible to avoid any effect on your grade.

Reading Assignments
This is a college-level reading class. You should plan on at least 2 hours of outside reading for each class meeting.

Since this is a small class based primarily on discussion and group activities, it is important that you complete the reading assigned for each class session and bring the assigned text to class with you.

Discussion Points
In preparation for class discussion, you should submit one good reading-based discussion point before each class session, unless otherwise stated on the syllabus.

Your discussion point must respond in some way to a classmate’s post. This requirement is waived if you are the first person to post for that class.

Discussion Points can be:
(1) questions about things you didn't understand in the readings,
(2) thoughts about aspects of the readings you would like to explore further, or
(3) comments about things you found particularly interesting.

Please see the Discussion Points handout for additional information.

Grades:
The university requires that all Reading and Composition courses be taken for a letter grade; a C- is required to fulfill the requirement. Your grade will be calculated as follows:
Participation: 10%
(includes active class participation, discussion points, oral presentations, freewrites, individual conferences)

Short Assignments: 10%
(includes essay proposals and drafts, peer reviews, various homework assignments)

Essays: 80%
Essay 1: (4-5 pages plus reflection) 10%
Essay 2: (6-8 pages plus reflection) 25%
Essay 3: Research paper (10-12 pages plus reflection) 45%

Late Assignments
You may turn in one assignment up to one week late, no questions asked. EXCEPTION: The peer review drafts ALL must be turned in on time so that your peer review partner may complete their review. If you choose to use the free late on your final research paper, you must turn it in by the Monday after it is due.

Late assignments after the first will affect your grade. Short assignments and essay drafts that are turned in late will receive half credit. Late essays will lose 5 points (out of 100 possible) per day.

Late assignments (beyond the one freebie) can only be excused by a doctor’s note stating the dates during which you were unable to work on the assignment. Doctor’s notes may be accepted at the professor’s discretion.

Peer Review
Each of the three formal essays you write for this class will be substantially revised based on peer review. You will turn in one draft at the peer review stage and one revised essay.

DRAFTS – Drafts are completed essays that meet the length requirement but are less polished than a revised essay. Each time a draft is due, we will hold a peer-review session in class and there will be peer review work outside of class.

REVISED ESSAYS – Revised essays are not just drafts that have been proofread. They should demonstrate your ability to re-think the essay and show a considerable amount of re-writing and re-structuring.

Policies

Technology in the Classroom
Since this is a small, discussion-based class, I would prefer that you not have your computer open in class.
If you have a strong preference or a disability-related reason for taking notes on your computer, you may do so. Please be sure, however, that you close web browsers and disable any applications that might distract you from the class discussion.

Cell phones should be turned to silent or off before class. Texting or chatting with friends online while in class is absolutely unacceptable.

I will count you absent for the day if I observe you using your phone/computer for these purposes.

Email
I typically do not check email after class on Friday, or on Saturday or Sunday. If you send me an email after 10:00am on Friday, do not expect a response until Monday. At all other times during the semester, I will respond to your emails as soon as I am able, usually within 24-48 hours.

If you missed class or an assignment, please ask a classmate about it before you email me with questions.

You may opt in to the email roster, which I will circulate at the fourth class session, if you are willing to be contacted by classmates with course-related questions.

Academic Honesty
Avoid plagiarism! Plagiarism is the “use of intellectual material produced by another person without acknowledging its source.”
Source: http://campuslife.berkeley.edu/conduct/integrity/definition.

Plagiarism includes copying, quoting or paraphrasing the work or ideas of another person without acknowledgement. We will spend class time talking about working with sources and using citations in ways that avoid plagiarism.

Disability Accommodations
All reasonable efforts will be made to accommodate students with disabilities in accordance with university policy. Information about specific resources provided by the UC Berkeley Disabled Students’ Program may be found online at http://dsp.berkeley.edu/dspServices.html or by calling (510) 642-0518 or (510) 642-6376 (teletype). Please notify me as soon as possible and no later than the second week of class if you require accommodations of any kind.

Food & Drink
Eating in class distracts you, me and everyone else. Please plan ahead and eat before, after or on your way to class. Feel free to bring something to drink, especially if caffeine or sugar would help you stay alert in class.
